Meditations (V) for 2-6 percussionists

2019

The work consists of three hundred short pieces for percussion. The pieces can be performed in any order and combination. Before a performance each performer selects 10-12 percussion instruments. The choice of instruments should be such that:

- 1) Each performer's instruments should be of as varied materials as possible,
- 2) The choices of instruments between performers should be as different as possible,
- 3) Each instrument should be able to produce either only one kind of sound, or only a few. Avoid wide ranged instruments, like concert marimba. However, a wind chime or a xylophone with several pitches only can be chosen. Also tubular bells can be used but only a few of them per performer.

Each performer arranges their instruments in a semicircle around them in any order. If the instrument needs mallets to produce sound, then it should be supplied with softer and harder mallets if possible. For such instruments the use of mallets should be as varied as possible.

The musicians play without a common time. Intonation need not be agreed upon. Duration is free.
